

Moon Miners' Manifesto is a 20 page monthly (except January and July) newsletter published by the Milwaukee Chapter of the National Space Society, the Lunar Reclamation Society, inc. Issue # 181 in December 2004 will mark the 18th anniversary of MMM. MMM serves the membership of LRS and of several other NSS Chapters, and with the Moon Society Journal centerfold, is the official publication of the Moon Society as well. There are also many individual subscribers.

Content & Themes:

MMM is less concerned with reporting current space news - there are ample other sources for that -- than with sketching how life can and will unfold on the space frontier: reasoned speculation about what lies beyond, what happens when we get there, is MMM's hallmark.

Most issues deal with the opening of the Lunar frontier, suggesting how pioneers can make best use of local resources. Some of the points made will relate specifically to pioneer life in the lunar environment. But much of what will hold for the Moon, will also hold true for Mars and for space in general. We have one Mars theme issue each year, and occasionally other space destinations are discussed: the asteroids, the great moons of Jupiter, Titan around Saturn, even the cloud tops of Venus.

Mars in MMM

With an annual issue (usually in March - March is for Mars) focusing on Mars, and with many articles about life on the lunar frontier applying in large part to the Martian Frontier as well, and with the focus on "what happens when we get there, when we are there to stay?" it is clear that MMM should be must reading for Mars enthusiasts as well. Dr. Robert Zubrin has been getting MMM in his mailbox since 1988.

Back Issues -- What's available?

As most articles in MMM deal with the period "after we get there" and not with current news about how we are going to get there, a high percentage of the articles are timeless. Archiving them, outside of the editor's computer, has been a hit and miss effort. Some articles are online. We have some spare back copies.
